STAR ROUTE DEVELOPMENTS. Mr. W. A. Cook Charged with Receiving of an Indictment. Charles D. Colman, an attorney of Plymouth, Mich., in testimony given before the committee investigating the star route trials, said that Wm. A. Cook, one of the government counsel in the prosecution, accepted several hundred dollars to prevent tractor. Dr. Colgrove, the witness said, was interested in a number of routes, and was innocent of any fraudulent action, but preferred paying out money to prevent an indictment rather than have the notoriety which would have ensued had a bill been found. The negotiations, Mr. Colman said, were conducted through Mr. Cole, a partner of Mr.

On cross-examination he said that Mrs. Carr had on cross-examination he said that Mrs. Carr had correctly stated the position of herself and her husband during the examination.

Mr. Cook presented a draft of prayers for instructions, and after some discussion the court ruled on them and instructed the jury that it was ruled on them and instructed the jury that it was unnecessary to prove the laws of nature by witnesses; that they were to take Mrs. Carr's whole story and decide whether it was possible for the crime to be committed as she described. The delay in informing her husband they were also to consider, as well as the failure to make an outcry. Mr. Cook withdrew the prayers, and District Attorney Worthington made an argument for the government and Mr. Cook then argued for the defense. Mr. Cook concluded his argument at 2:20 o'clock and Mr. Worthington followed.

KELLEY DEFENDS THE ENGINEER CORPS. Mr. Kelley (Pa.) expressed his confidence in the declarations of the engineer corps. Progress had been made, even though at the slow rate to which Congressional appropriations confined it. Eads' scheme might be accomplished for $8,000,000, it might take $15,000.000, and he was not sure that Congress would do any better in the way of appro-priations for it than it had done for the scheme of Mr. Wolford (Ky.) thought that the request of the Texas delegation should be complied with, and that the money thus saved should be appropriated

The House passed three bills from the District committee yesterday afternoon. The mechanics lien bill, which extends to sub-contractors and fourneyman laborers the privilege of securing liens on property to secure payment for work done, was reported by Mr. Muldrow, and passed with some slight amendments. The other bills, reported by Mr. McComas, were to extend the time allowed the Southern Maryland ratiroad company to complete the extension of their road into the District; and authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay OuterbridgeHorsey for medicines furnished the District poor. Capitol Topics.

THE ADJOURNMENT QUESTION. The House to-day passed, by a practically unanimous vote, a resolution reported by the ways and means committee, to adjourn June 30th. It is not secure an adjournment at that time. Mr. Randall says they will do all in their power to do so, and he hopes they will succeed; but it will depend upon the action of the Senate. The appropriation bills under dispute between the two houses are about as far from being settled as ever, and to their num-ber has been added the consular and diplomatic bill, which the Senate committee reported with over a million dollars increase. The House, it is thought, will not agree to any increase upon their bills, and the only chance for an early settlement of the matter is in the Senate yielding promptly. Senator Beck expressed the opinion that an ad-ournment could not be secured for a much longer ime yet; probably as late as August. CONFERENCE ON THE P. O. APPROPRIATION BILL. The conference on the post office appropriation bill this morning resulted in a disagreement upon the proposition regulating the compensation of railroads and those relating to letter-carriers and to postal clerks, the conferees of either house ad-

Traffic will be regular opposition to Mr. Blaine," he says, "will not be effective unless there is a convention called and some decided steps taken, and this cannot be done unless it is done in a few days. That they will act promptly is not likely. They will be tempted to wait until after the democrats hold their convention. Then it will be too late for action, and they will fall back into the republican ranks. Another thing, there is no combined action and no definite object in view. Some of their leaders are wildly for Blaine. Pennsylvania is the great center of the independent movement, and there they are enthusiastically for Blaine. The leading independents are extravagant Blaine supporters. The only posttive opposition is in New York and Massachusetts, and that will not effect much, for even there they are not united. Ethan Allen, one of their acknowledged leaders, is a noted Blaine man. Blaine will lose votes in Boston, but all the rabble throughout the state that went over to Butler will be glad enough to get back into the party by casting their votes for the Maine statesman. This will vastly more than make up for the loss in Boston."
